When it comes to a show-down few blalplayers can show up an umpire.

The Brooklyn Robins are going to try out a pitcher named Wurm of St. Francis college. Another case of the early bird.

Speaking from a musical viewpoint a blf on the bugle usually puts one of the most important organs out of commission.

Travel has a broadening influence, as witness those lightweights who go to Australia and return heavyweights.

Ah Chung, the Chiense lightweight, is said to be the champion of Peking. Being as how Peking was the center of the Boxer rebellion we assume Ah Chung's a clever guy.

The Dillon-Moran bout has progressed so far that they are now sparring only a column a day over the referee.

A bike road race always draws a goodly throng of spectators. It does not cost them anything.

WALSH FAILS IN COME-BACK—LACKS FORMER STUFF

By Mark Shields

Twelve thousand fans went out to Comiskey park yesterday to see a pitching "duel" between Ed Walsh and Walter Johnson. What they saw was a funeral, the humiliation of the best pitcher the White Sox ever owned, as good a man and as game a sportsman as ever picked up a glove in the American league.

Johnson didn't pitch. Manager Griffith said his star hadn't slept for two nights because of the noise of railroad trains outside the hotel at which the team is stopping. Harper went in for the Nationals and allowed the Sox three hits, Terry getting two and driving in both Rose runs.

Probably half the crowd was drawn to the park by the billing of the so-called "duel." This half would have come just to see Walsh try his come-back, even if Johnson had not been advertised. Washington is being blamed for the "stung" feeling the fans had after the game, but there never should have been reason for this feeling.

Walsh should not have started, even against a team which is in such a batting slump as Washington. It was apparent to those in the stands that he didn't have any of the stuff that made him the king of boxmen, and surely this fact must have been known to the expert baseball people charged with direction of the Sox.

How much faith Manager Rowland had in Walsh was shown in the first inning, when Reb Russell started to warm up as soon as the game started. He didn't expect the Moose to last, it seemed, and wanted to save as much of the game as possible.

The fact that Walsh, the idol of the South Side, was being knocked off his pedestal seemed to make lit-
